CAUSE OF JOY.

Vicksburg is surrendered, and Port Hudson is surrendered—the two with forty thousand or more rebel soldiers, and an immense amount of cannon and munitions of war. A few weeks ago, when the attention of the public was turned toward the operations of our army in the south-west, when men were buying (not to say tormenting) themselves with conjectures, when the entire gaze of the loyal North was turned towards the Mississippi, and we all held our breath while reading the "news from Grant's Army," the announcement with which this paragraph commences, would have been received with a degree of enthusiasm actually dangerous to excitable people. But since that time a series of events nearer home has entirely diverted attention, that the crushing of the very ribs of the rebellion within the lightning circle of the Annapolis, is regarded as a spectacle secondary in point of interest to the performances of a much smaller kind of reptile, known as the copperhead, which has been stirring up a riot in New York.

There is truly cause for rejoicing beyond what words can express in the triumph of our arms on the Mississippi. We cannot conceive in a moment, of the grandeur of the results which must flow from what our soldiers have accomplished during the past few weeks. Not in a day or a week or a year, will the full importance of these glorious deeds be realized. These events with the great victory in Pennsylvania, the progress towards the capture of Charleston—will grow upon our sight as we continue to look at them, and experience their effects in the future prosecution of the war for the suppression of the rebellion and the restoration of National Authority throughout the Union. The great riot in New York city, horrible as it is of itself, will soon cease to occupy the public. The ferocious rioters, the burners and plunderers of asylums, of hotels of dwelling houses, the murderers of inoffensive persons and of faithful policemen and officers, will be found by scores in confinement awaiting their trial for their crimes, and the guilty instigators of the riot, will be settling down into that pit of infamy which is to be their dwelling place for all coming time. But the heroic conquerors of Vicksburg and Port Hudson, the gallant men who have fought for their country on the many fields over to be memorable in the history of the nation, will be gathering honor from their grateful countrymen, during all their lives, and be remembered with honor and praise by the generations yet to come.

THE SPIRIT OF DEVILS.—We adverted last week to the guilt of those politicians in New York city, whose teachings naturally led to the outbreak of violence which has for the last four days kept the peaceable inhabitants of that city in terror for their property and lives. We noted especially a leading article of the N. Y. World of the very day in which the riot began; and we now note another of the same tenor, of the day after, when conflagration, robbery and murder were at their height over large parts of the city. The World gives a narrative of the riot, and then says that the men who had gone into the service of their country in the war were "just such as have struck terror through our peaceful streets"—that is, it puts the soldiers fighting for the nation's preservation on a par with thieves, robbers, house-burners and murderers. The World asks what makes the difference "between the obedient soldier and the insensate mob?" and says: "Let the tenant of the White House answer." And again:

"Will the insensate men at Washington now at length listen to our voice? Will they now give ear to our warnings and allegations? Will they now believe that Defiance of Law in the rebels breeds Defiance of Law in the Capital? Does the doctrine proclaimed from the Capitol that in law was silent place them put in practice in the streets of New York?"

These are the very men who, in the above, and much more of the same character, knew that he was lying when he said that such doctrine was ever proclaimed or acted upon by the President or his cabinet, or by any who are in authority to support the government of the country. Did the writer of such a lying slander believe that the paragraph at the end of his atrocious article, saying to the mob "your resistance is futile and unlawful"—the Governor of the State will allow no law to be disobeyed?"—the first man who is called from his home by the draft has it in his power to test the constitutionality of the law by which he is selected, and the decisions of the courts will be sustained in the Empire State against any and every power which attempts to override them? Would he help to stop the bloody progress of these men as addressed? It did nothing of the sort, neither can it save him from the guilt and infamy that will forever and justly attach to his name and to the names of all who talk and act as he does.

A Good Chip.

Mr. Horatio Chapin, of this town, at the late sheep shearing, sheared from his flock of yearlings, 60 in number, 315 lbs. of well-washed wool. The fleeces ranged from 5 lbs. 12 oz. to 7 lbs. 6 oz.—averaging 5 1/2 lbs. per head.

The wool is very fine, even, clean and white, of the best quality.

These sheep are Spanish Merino, wintered without grass, and with ordinary feed only.

For the Sick and Wounded.

BATTLEFIELD, July 15, 1863.

The following dispatch is just received from the Executive Committee of the New England Women's Branch of the U. S. Sanitary Commission, Boston.

"We are very busy buying and forwarding stores of all kinds to Baltimore and Washington. They ask us to furnish a car-load per diem, and we have already dispatched three, and shall continue as long as the money holds out. An unlimited amount of clothing is needed, especially cotton drawers, cotton and woolen shirts, double wrappers, cotton socks, &c."

It is the wish of the Committee, that as a matter of convenience in repacking, and as a saving of expense, everything from Vermont be sent to the Branch in Boston, and ample facilities are offered for so doing. Each Aid Society is supposed to have a proper card of address; but to prevent mistake we add it, as follows:

"HOSPITAL STORES FOR N. E. W. A. A. S. CARE QUARTER MASTER GENERAL, BATTLEFIELD, Vt."

All stores bearing this mark are sent directly to the Association at Boston. A letter should be sent, at the same time, by mail to "N. E. W. A. A. S. 22 SUMMIT ST. BOSTON, MASS."

We have not only to supply the present necessities of the sufferers from the late battles, and the large numbers of sick and wounded, before dependent upon the Commission; but to prepare a reserve store, that may be in readiness for the battles near at hand. And if the present troubles in New York should interrupt, as they may do, the stream of supplies from that Branch of the Commission, we must make greater efforts still, on the part of New England, which represents the favored portion of our republic.

BATTLES OF THE HOWARD GARDEN.—The return of Company C, of the 12th Regiment, was made the occasion of a patriotic demonstration last week. On their arrival by the Rutland and Burlington R. R., they were met by a large concourse of our citizens including the several Fire Companies of Burlington in uniform. A salute of fifteen guns was fired from the Battery, and the Company was escorted to the Park, where S. Adams, Esq., addressed them briefly, referring to the circumstances under which they again met their friends, relatives and acquaintances. Thinking them for the service they had rendered to the state, and especially thinking them in behalf of their fellow townsmen, he welcomed them to the homes which had felt, and but for the July came in which they had been engaged, would have very much regretted, their absence.

He congratulated the company upon the safe return of so many of their number, to meet again those who had anxiously looked forward to the hour which had now arrived, and which relieved the care and solicitude of many of those who had assembled to greet them. In conclusion Mr. Adams called for three cheers for the returned "boys" which were heartily given by the audience. Cheers were also given for Co. A, of the 12th regiment, for the army of the Potomac, for the Flag, and for Gen. Meade and Standard.

Captain Page in behalf of Company C, thanked those present for the welcome they had given. He remarked that his company, although they had enlisted for nine months only, had served ten months and fourteen days. They had served like men and soldiers, and their townsmen had reason to be proud of every one of them. They had faithfully discharged every duty while in the service, and endured without a murmur the privations of a soldier's life, and the strict discipline of military discipline.

The "Guards" by order of Captain Page then marched to Union Hall and were there disbanded.

On arriving in the Hall the company was addressed by Capt. Page, who recalled some of the experiences of soldier's life which they had shared together, and could never forget, and expressed his thanks for the treatment they had received at their hands and his personal esteem for each member of the company. Lieut. Wing followed him in a short speech of thanks to the boys for the prompt obedience of orders and the kindness and respect he had received from them. Then with three cheers apiece for each officer of the company, three for the non-commissioned officers, three for Lieut. Wm. Loomis, who through attached to another company, has never been wholly relinquished by Co. C, three for Drum Major Downer, and three for Mr. E. C. Loomis, who early greeting as a representative of the citizens of Burlington, even before the regiment reached Battlefield, and active exertions in arranging the rousing reception just given them were fully appreciated by the officers and men, the company dispersed to their several places of abode.

We venture to say that no one of them regrets his ten months service in the army of the Union, or will ever cease to remember with pride and pleasure his connection with Co. C. of the Twelfth Vermont.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Times writing from Norfolk on the 12th inst. Lieut. A. L. Sanborn, of Co. B. 2d U. S. colored volunteers, while marching with his company down the street, was insulted by a well known citizen and secessionist, Dr. D. A. Wetmore, who on being arrested by the Lieut. shot him dead. Dr. Wetmore was immediately taken by the Provost guard, and put in confinement. Lieut. Sanborn was a Vermont, formerly employed in the quartermaster's department at Washington.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Journal of a Residence on a Georgia Plantation in 1850. By FRANCES ANNE KEMBLE. New York: Harper & Brothers.

This is a remarkable and painfully interesting book. The author, an English lady of eminent reputation, both in this country and England, for her power in dramatic representation and rehearsal, and for her decided and independent character, married a southern gentleman in Philadelphia, who was residing chiefly in Philadelphia, and who was residing chiefly in Philadelphia, and who was residing chiefly in Philadelphia.

Isotomian Statement.—The New York Commercial Advertiser makes the statement that Edward McDermott, one of the rioters who was killed, according to the statement of a friend of the deceased, was induced to join the rioters by prominent politicians who told him that he would be sustained, that his wages as well as those of all the rioters would be paid, and that the draft would eventually be stopped. That those politicians organized the resistance, and promised to pay the rioters for all losses they might sustain; and that now they skulked and were not to be found. He stated further, that the whole of the facts would soon be brought to light.

With such men as "South-side" and "North-side," Rev. Dr. Lord, and our northern politicians generally, were obliged, every one of them, to read this book from beginning to end, that they might see the system for which they apologize and labor, with all its hideous deformity, blood-curdling cruelty and lawless despotism, portrayed in its true colors, by a fearless and competent hand.

MEMORIAL OF THE LIFE AND CHARACTER OF THE LATE HON. THOS. F. FALLINGS. By Talbot W. Chalmers. New York: Harper & Brothers.
